

HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT, MSHRM

Human Resource Management, MSHRM program aims to gain a full understanding of the human resource function, including recruitment, selection; placement; training and career development; employee and labor relations; performance measurement; and resource planning. You will learn how legal issues, human behavior, labor relations, and diversity impact the modern organization.

Other courses expand on substantive areas in human resource management that are briefly covered in the introductory course. Psychological and sociological principles, statistical techniques, and practical business economics are blended to produce effective knowledge and skill for human resource management specialists.

Other departments in the university, such as economics and psychology, offer courses that enable students in human resource management to enhance their study of the employer-employee relationship. There is no substitute for experience in dealing with people in a work situation and students are advised to acquire such experience through part-time work or internships.

The Heller College of Business offers two programs in Human Resource Management at the graduate level: the Master of Business Administration (MBA) with a Concentration in Human Resource Management (see information under the MBA listing in this catalog), the Master of Science in Human Resource Management (MSHRM).

The Human Resource Management curriculum is designed to provide students with comprehensive and in-depth coverage of modern HR specializations and current topics. The curriculum emphasizes coverage of theoretical and applied material to provide foundational HR knowledge and HR skills and competencies critical to any successful HR professional. The degree can be pursued either on a full- or part-time basis.

Additionally, to ensure the program meets professional standards and practices and for ease of certification (PHR & SPHR), the program curriculum follows closely the Society for Human Resource Management graduate program guidelines. The program is formally recognized by SHRM as a program curriculum aligned with society's recommended standards.
