MEd 250 - Media and Social Change
This course explores the potentially positive impact of the media. The mass media have been blamed for their negative influence, such as encouraging consumerism, violence, stereotypes or age-inappropriate behaviors for children. The positive influences of the media, however, are rarely discussed. This course, therefore, will focus on media’s beneficial impact on society. We first will explore whether media can change society, and if so, whether that change can be in the control of producers, government, or the audience. Then, the course will examine specific examples of positive media influence on individuals and society as a whole. We also will observe how the media have the potential to initiate such changes, whether these changes have been made intentionally or unintentionally, and how media technology has played a role.
Credits: 3
Attributes: Grounds for Change
Prerequisites: ENG 102

MED 363 - MEDIA ETHICS
An investigation in depth of various ethical theories and orientations, and a value-based analysis of what each one means and how they differ; exploration of both micro- and macro-ethical approaches to problems. Students will be challenged to examine their own values and determine their ethical orientations as a first step to ethical decision making.
Credits: 1,3
Prerequisites: COMM 201

MED 364 - LAW/ETHICS DISCUSSION
This section is for MED majors/minors. This is a law/ethics discussion session in which students will consider media and communications implications of the law and ethics materials covered in the JOUR 363 lecture section.
Credits: 1
Prerequisites: COMM 201
Course Notes: Must also register for JOUR/MED 363 Lecture

MED 373 - EXAMINING MEDIA ETHICS
An investigation of mass-mediated communication, and information as a mass commodity, on values, particularly the value of truth. In an age of information glut, where every possible point of view is represented, all points of view appear to have the same value. Having "values" demands the evaluation of ideas—seeing which ones are "better" than others. This course seeks to help the student find certainty in a culture of confusion.
Credits: 3
Prerequisites: ENG 102
Course Notes: Sophomore standing or higher.

MED 375 - MEDIA ANALYSIS AND CRITICISM
Students use newspapers, magazines and the Internet in applying contemporary criticism to current media issues and performance. Emphasizes the social impact of mass media messages.
Credits: 3
Prerequisites: COMM 201

MED 380 - MEDIA RESEARCH METHODS
Students will learn the advantages and disadvantages of a number of quantitative and qualitative research methods, identify a research question and thesis, review the literature related to their area of research interest, and outline their continuing work in addressing their question and supporting—or refuting—their thesis. Work this semester leads to a proposal for a research project to be executed in the Spring semester (MED 381).
Credits: 3
Prerequisites: MED 203 and COMM 201

MED 381 - MEDIA STUDIES RESEARCH PROJECT
Students previously completed in MED 380 the first steps in the research process: identified a topic, reviewed literature, identified a research question, identified an appropriate method, and submitted a proposal. In MED 381, students focus on the remaining tasks in the research process: collection of data, analysis and evaluation of data, discernment of an answer to the research question, writing a conclusion, writing an introduction, and presentation of the research.
Credits: 3
Prerequisites: MED 380

MED 395 - INDEPENDENT STUDY
Credits: 1-3

MED 399 - INTERNSHIP
In-service training with professional media operation, media research organization, or other appropriate entity. See internship coordinator or department office for course syllabus.
