ENGLISH, BA

Students who major in English will undertake a course of study designed to develop knowledge in literary trends, themes, and genres as well as skills in critical interpretation and written communication. In advanced courses, students will investigate the structure, style, intellectual content, historical significance, and cultural context of the literature produced in Great Britain and the United States, as well as Anglophone literature from around the world. This extensive textual study will foster appreciation of diverse cultural values and of the means by which culture is transmitted through language.

The English faculty has designed the curriculum in the firm belief that acquiring cultural knowledge and strengthening skills in research, analysis and communication are not only intellectually rewarding but also valuable to students with a variety of goals, such as pursuing graduate degrees in English literature and language; teaching English in secondary schools or in foreign countries; pursuing careers in professions such as law, medicine, technology or business; or working in any field for which cultural awareness and strong analytical, interpretive, research, and writing skills are desired.

During their course of study at Roosevelt University, our English majors:

- Read and analyze a wide range of literature in order to explore how those texts engage with social, political, historical and aesthetic issues.
- Learn to understand the craft of writing through incorporating the techniques and practices of published writers.
- Develop skills in the processes of reading, research, composition, and editing.
- Acquire a foundation of content and skills that stimulates intellectual inquiry and the ability to think critically and imaginatively.
- Discover how language is a nuanced and powerful means of self-expression and social interaction.
- Consider how literary texts (including print and new media) both reflect and participate in cultural conflict and change.
- Gain insight into the myriad ways that language and literature help us to understand and to work for social justice.
- Become thinkers and writers equipped to follow a diverse range of career paths, including (but not limited to) writing, editing, publishing, library science, law, education, marketing and journalism.

Requirements

The major consists of 13 courses in English literature: seven core courses and six electives. Five of the core courses – ENG 210 BRITISH LITERATURE TO 1789, ENG 211 BRITISH LITERATURE 1789 TO PRESENT, ENG 212 AMERICAN LITERATURE TO 1865, ENG 213 AMERICAN LITERATURE 1865-PRESENT, and ENG 215 INTRODUCTION TO ETHNIC LITERATURES and ENG 207 INTRODUCTION TO AFRICAN-AMERICAN LITERATURE – have a prerequisite of ENG 101 COMPOSITION I: CRITICAL READING & WRITING and thus may be taken by second-semester freshmen. The two required courses in analytical interpretation (ENG 220 INTRODUCTION TO LITERARY ANALYSIS & ENG 221 TEXTS AND CONTEXTS) have a prerequisite of ENG 102 COMPOSITION II: INTRODUCTION TO ACADEMIC RESEARCH. Of the electives, five must be at the 300 level, all of which have a prerequisite of ENG 220 INTRODUCTION TO LITERARY ANALYSIS. ENG 221 TEXTS AND CONTEXTS, although not a prerequisite, is strongly recommended before undertaking 300-level electives. ENG 117 IDEAS ACROSS THE CENTURIES may be counted both as an English elective and as the Ideas requirement in the general education curriculum. Transfer students must complete at least five 300-level English courses at Roosevelt.

Electives should be chosen in close consultation with an advisor to devise a program that both satisfies the student’s interests and involves sufficient breadth. For students whose expository writing would profit from additional practice, an advisor may also strongly recommend or require ENG 222 WRITING ABOUT IDEAS.

Students must maintain a 2.5 GPA in the major, and must earn grades of C- or higher in all major coursework.

Concentration in Creative Writing

Students interested in this concentration follow a curriculum that complements the study of literature with four workshops that provide exposure to and further practice in a variety of genres in creative writing.

The creative writing workshops include a multi-genre introductory course, at least two of three genre courses, and the Creative Writing Capstone course, in which students assemble and revise a portfolio of their best work.

Your degree map is a general guide suggesting courses to complete each term on the academic pathway to your degree. It is based on the most current scheduling information from your academic program. Your program’s degree map is reviewed annually and updated as schedules change (although you retain the same course requirements as long as you are continuously enrolled in your degree program).

Always work closely with your academic advisor to understand curriculum requirements and scheduling, as each student’s academic plan can look slightly different.
