

DIGITAL MARKETING, ADVERTISING AND PUBLIC RELATIONS, BA TO MARKETING COMMUNICATIONS, MSIMC

The broad field of Marketing Communications includes social and digital marketing, advertising, public relations, promotional marketing, and other forms of persuasive communications. The program is professional in focus and prepares students for entry-level work in any area of the field.

Through the accelerated BA/MS program, undergraduate students majoring or minoring in the Digital Marketing, Advertising, and Public Relations program may complete both degrees – in less time and at less cost – with just one additional year for the graduate degree the after completion of the B.A. Students start on the master's degree by taking graduate-level courses while finishing the undergraduate degree.

Roosevelt's faculty in Marketing Communications are professionals, first and foremost. All have had successful careers in the marketing communications business with responsibility for building and managing major-brand communications activities. All also have distinguished academic credentials. The Marketing Communications faculty designed this curriculum and bring their work experiences to bear in every class, keeping the courses up to date and in step with new developments in this constantly evolving field.

Admission to the accelerated program

Digital Marketing, Advertising, and Public Relations majors and minors with an overall grade point average of 3.0 should apply for the program by the end of the first semester of their junior year.

During the senior year, admitted students take three graduate-level Marketing Communications elective courses. When they begin the graduate program, the three senior-year graduate electives will also count toward the master's degree.

The double-counting of three electives allows students to complete the master's degree in a single year (fall and spring) after completing the BA. If a student admitted to the program falls below a 2.7 GPA before graduation with the BA, the student will not be allowed to continue into the graduate program. The graduate-level electives can still count as undergraduate credit as long as the final grades are at C (not C-) level or higher.

The major for the BA in Digital Marketing, Advertising, and Public Relations requires a total of 12 courses (37 credit hours), including nine core courses and three electives.

To receive a degree in this field, students admitted to the accelerated program must:

- Complete all courses in the major with a minimum grade of C (not C-) or better.
- Maintain at least an overall grade point average of B (3.0 or higher GPA) in the major.
